SEAN F. McAVOY, CLERK

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT EASTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

LEILANI B.,¹

Plaintiff,

vs.

ANDREW M. SAUL,
COMMISSIONER OF SOCIAL SECURITY,

Defendant.

No. 1:19-cv-03189-MKD

ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFF'S
MOTION FOR SUMMARY
JUDGMENT AND DENYING DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

ECF Nos. 14, 16

Before the Court are the parties' cross-motions for summary judgment. ECF Nos. 14, 16. The parties consented to proceed before a magistrate judge. ECF No. 8. The Court, having reviewed the administrative record and the parties' briefing, ¹ To protect the privacy of plaintiffs in social security cases, the undersigned identifies them by only their first names and the initial of their last names. See LCivR 5.2(c).

1 is fully informed. For the reasons discussed below, the Court grants Plaintiff's 2 motion, ECF No. 14, and denies Defendant's motion, ECF No. 16.

3 JURISDICTION

4 The Court has jurisdiction over this case pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1383(c)(3).

5 STANDARD OF REVIEW

6 A district court's review of a final decision of the Commissioner of Social 7 Security is governed by 42 U.S.C. § 405(g). The scope of review under § 405(g) is 8 limited; the Commissioner's decision will be disturbed "only if it is not supported 9 by substantial evidence or is based on legal error." Hill v. Astrue, 698 F.3d 1153, 10 1158 (9th Cir. 2012). "Substantial evidence" means "relevant evidence that a 11 reasonable mind might accept as adequate to support a conclusion." Id. at 1159 12 (quotation and citation omitted). Stated differently, substantial evidence equates to 13 "more than a mere scintilla[,] but less than a preponderance." Id. (quotation and 14 citation omitted). In determining whether the standard has been satisfied, a 15 reviewing court must consider the entire record as a whole rather than searching 16 for supporting evidence in isolation. Id.

17 In reviewing a denial of benefits, a district court may not substitute its 18 judgment for that of the Commissioner. Edlund v. Massanari, 253 F.3d 1152, 19 1156 (9th Cir. 2001). If the evidence in the record "is susceptible to more than one 20 rational interpretation, [the court] must uphold the ALJ's findings if they are

1 supported by inferences reasonably drawn from the record.” Molina v. Astrue, 674 2 F.3d 1104, 1111 (9th Cir. 2012). Further, a district court “may not reverse an 3 ALJ’s decision on account of an error that is harmless.” Id. An error is harmless 4 “where it is inconsequential to the [ALJ’s] ultimate nondisability determination.” 5 Id. at 1115 (quotation and citation omitted). The party appealing the ALJ’s 6 decision generally bears the burden of establishing that it was harmed. Shinseki v.
7 Sanders, 556 U.S. 396, 409-10 (2009).

8 FIVE-STEP EVALUATION PROCESS

9 A claimant must satisfy two conditions to be considered “disabled” within 10 the meaning of the Social Security Act. First, the claimant must be “unable to 11 engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable 12 physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which 13 has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than twelve 14 months.” 42 U.S.C. § 1382c(a)(3)(A). Second, the claimant’s impairment must be 15 “of such severity that he is not only unable to do his previous work[,] but cannot, 16 considering his age, education, and work experience, engage in any other kind of 17 substantial gainful work which exists in the national economy.” 42 U.S.C. § 18 1382c(a)(3)(B).

19 The Commissioner has established a five-step sequential analysis to 20 determine whether a claimant satisfies the above criteria. See 20 C.F.R. §

1 416.920(a)(4)(i)-(v). At step one, the Commissioner considers the claimant's work
2 activity. 20 C.F.R. § 416.920(a)(4)(i). If the claimant is engaged in "substantial 3 gainful activity," the Commissioner must find that the claimant is not disabled. 20 4 C.F.R. § 416.920(b).

5 If the claimant is not engaged in substantial gainful activity, the analysis 6 proceeds to step two. At this step, the Commissioner considers the severity of the 7 claimant's impairment. 20 C.F.R. § 416.920(a)(4)(ii). If the claimant suffers from 8 "any impairment or combination of impairments which significantly limits [his or 9 her] physical or mental ability to do basic work activities," the analysis proceeds to 10 step three. 20 C.F.R. § 416.920(c). If the claimant's impairment does not satisfy 11 this severity threshold, however, the Commissioner must find that the claimant is 12 not disabled. 20 C.F.R. § 416.920(c).

13 At step three, the Commissioner compares the claimant's impairment to 14 severe impairments recognized by the Commissioner to be so severe as to preclude 15 a person from engaging in substantial gainful activity. 20 C.F.R. § 16 416.920(a)(4)(iii). If the impairment is as severe or more severe than one of the 17 enumerated impairments, the Commissioner must find the claimant disabled and 18 award benefits. 20 C.F.R. § 416.920(d).

19 If the severity of the claimant's impairment does not meet or exceed the 20 severity of the enumerated impairments, the Commissioner must pause to assess

1 the claimant's "residual functional capacity." Residual functional capacity (RFC), 2 defined generally as the claimant's ability to perform physical and mental work
3 activities on a sustained basis despite his or her limitations, 20 C.F.R. § 4 416.945(a)(1), is relevant to both the fourth and fifth steps of the analysis.

5 At step four, the Commissioner considers whether, in view of the claimant's 6 RFC, the claimant is capable of performing work that he or she has performed in 7 the past (past relevant work). 20 C.F.R. § 416.920(a)(4)(iv). If the claimant is 8 capable of performing past relevant work, the Commissioner must find that the 9 claimant is not disabled. 20 C.F.R. § 416.920(f). If the claimant is incapable of 10 performing such work, the analysis proceeds to step five.

11 At step five, the Commissioner considers whether, in view of the claimant's 12 RFC, the claimant is capable of performing other work in the national economy.
13 20 C.F.R. § 416.920(a)(4)(v). In making this determination, the Commissioner 14 must also consider vocational factors such as the claimant's age, education and 15 past work experience. 20 C.F.R. § 416.920(a)(4)(v). If the claimant is capable of 16 adjusting to other work, the Commissioner must find that the claimant is not 17 disabled. 20 C.F.R. § 416.920(g)(1). If the claimant is not capable of adjusting to 18 other work, analysis concludes with a finding that the claimant is disabled and is 19 therefore entitled to benefits. 20 C.F.R. § 416.920(g)(1).

1 The claimant bears the burden of proof at steps one through four above.
2 Tackett v. Apfel, 180 F.3d 1094, 1098 (9th Cir. 1999). If the analysis proceeds to 3 step five, the burden shifts to the Commissioner to establish that (1) the claimant is 4 capable of performing other work; and (2) such work “exists in significant 5 numbers in the national economy.” 20 C.F.R. § 416.960(c)(2); Beltran v. Astrue, 6 700 F.3d 386, 389 (9th Cir. 2012).

7 ALJ’S FINDINGS

8 On March 24, 2016, Plaintiff applied for Title XVI supplemental security 9 income benefits alleging a disability onset date of March 24, 2016. Tr. 182-90.
10 The application was denied initially, and on reconsideration. Tr. 99-104; Tr. 108-11 14. Plaintiff appeared before an administrative law judge (ALJ) on July 17, 2018.
12 Tr. 35-65. On August 29, 2018, the ALJ denied Plaintiff’s claim. Tr. 12-34.

13 At step one of the sequential evaluation process, the ALJ found Plaintiff has 14 not engaged in substantial gainful activity since March 24, 2016. Tr. 17. At step 15 two, the ALJ found that Plaintiff has the following severe impairments:
16 degenerative disc disease- lumbar spine, fibromyalgia, depressive disorder, anxiety 17 disorder, post-traumatic stress disorder, personality disorder, and marijuana use 18 disorder. Id.

19 At step three, the ALJ found Plaintiff does not have an impairment or 20 combination of impairments that meets or medically equals the severity of a listed

1 impairment. Tr. 18. The ALJ then concluded that Plaintiff has the RFC to perform 2 light work with the following limitations:

3 [Plaintiff] can never crawl or climb ladders, ropes, or scaffolds; she 4 can occasionally balance, stoop, kneel, crouch, and climb ramps or 5 stairs; she should avoid all exposure to unprotected heights and 6 excessive vibration; she would be limited to simple, routine tasks; and 7 she would be limited to superficial and occasional interaction with the 8 public and co-workers.

9 Tr. 21.

10 At step four, the ALJ found Plaintiff is unable to perform any past relevant 11 work. Tr. 28. At step five, the ALJ found that, considering Plaintiff's age, 12 education, work experience, RFC, and testimony from the vocational expert, there 13 were jobs that existed in significant numbers in the national economy that Plaintiff 14 could perform, such as cafeteria attendant, housekeeping cleaner, and agricultural 15 produce sorter. Tr. 29. Therefore, the ALJ concluded Plaintiff was not under a 16 disability, as defined in the Social Security Act, from the date of the application 17 though the date of the decision. Id.

18 On June 16, 2019, the Appeals Council denied review of the ALJ's decision, 19 Tr. 1-6, making the ALJ's decision the Commissioner's final decision for purposes 20 of judicial review. See 42 U.S.C. § 1383(c)(3).

ISSUES

Plaintiff seeks judicial review of the Commissioner's final decision denying her supplemental security income benefits under Title XVI of the Social Security Act. Plaintiff raises the following issues for review:

1. Whether the ALJ properly evaluated the medical opinion evidence; and
2. Whether the ALJ properly evaluated Plaintiff's symptom claims.

ECF No. 14 at 2.

DISCUSSION

A. Medical Opinion Evidence

Plaintiff contends the ALJ erred in rejecting the opinions of Beth McManis, ARNP, William Drenguis, M.D., R.A. Cline, Psy.D., and Alexander Patterson, Psy.D. ECF No. 14 at 5-15.

There are three types of physicians: "(1) those who treat the claimant (treating physicians); (2) those who examine but do not treat the claimant (examining physicians); and (3) those who neither examine nor treat the claimant [but who review the claimant's file] (nonexamining [or reviewing] physicians)." Holohan v. Massanari, 246 F.3d 1195, 1201-02 (9th Cir. 2001) (citations omitted). Generally, a treating physician's opinion carries more weight than an examining physician's, and an examining physician's opinion carries more weight than a reviewing physician's. Id. at 1202. "In addition, the regulations give more weight

1 to opinions that are explained than to those that are not, and to the opinions of 2 specialists concerning matters relating to their specialty over that of 3 nonspecialists.” Id. (citations omitted).

4 If a treating or examining physician’s opinion is uncontradicted, the ALJ 5 may reject it only by offering “clear and convincing reasons that are supported by 6 substantial evidence.” Bayliss v. Barnhart, 427 F.3d 1211, 1216 (9th Cir. 2005).
7 “However, the ALJ need not accept the opinion of any physician, including a 8 treating physician, if that opinion is brief, conclusory and inadequately supported 9 by clinical findings.” Bray v. Comm’r of Soc. Sec. Admin., 554 F.3d 1219, 1228 10 (9th Cir. 2009) (internal quotation marks and brackets omitted). “If a treating or 11 examining doctor’s opinion is contradicted by another doctor’s opinion, an ALJ 12 may only reject it by providing specific and legitimate reasons that are supported 13 by substantial evidence.” Bayliss, 427 F.3d at 1216 (citing Lester v. Chater, 81 14 F.3d 821, 830-31 (9th Cir. 1995)). The opinion of a nonexamining physician may 15 serve as substantial evidence if it is supported by other independent evidence in the 16 record. Andrews v. Shalala, 53 F.3d 1035, 1041 (9th Cir. 1995).

17 “Only physicians and certain other qualified specialists are considered 18 ‘[a]cceptable medical sources.’” Ghanim v. Colvin, 763 F.3d 1154, 1161 (9th Cir.

2014) (alteration in original); see 20 C.F.R. § 416.913 (2013).² However, an ALJ is required to consider evidence from non-acceptable medical sources, such as therapists. 20 C.F.R. § 416.913(d).³ An ALJ may reject the opinion of a non-acceptable medical source by giving reasons germane to the opinion. Ghanim, 763 F.3d at 1161.

1. Ms. McManis

Ms. McManis, a treating nurse practitioner, diagnosed Plaintiff with leg pain, pre-diabetes, fibromyalgia, obesity, depression, elevated blood pressure, insomnia, anxiety, chronic pain, low back pain, obstructive sleep apnea, hypoxemia, osteoarthritis, occipital neuralgia, post-surgical syndrome in the lumbar region, lumbar radiculopathy, long-term opioid use, and noted Plaintiff is a smoker. Tr. 619-20. She opined Plaintiff needs to lie down for a few hours to all day due to fatigue; Plaintiff's condition would deteriorate if she had to work on a

² The regulation that defines acceptable medical sources is found at 20 C.F.R. § 416.902 for claims filed after March 27, 2017. The Court applies the regulation in effect at the time of Plaintiff's filing.

³ The regulation that requires an ALJ's consider opinions from non-acceptable medical sources is found at 20 C.F.R. § 416.927(f) for claims filed after March 27, 2017. The Court applies the regulation in effect at the time of Plaintiff's filing.

1 continuous and regular basis; she would miss four or more days per month; 2 Plaintiff cannot sit or stand for long periods; and Plaintiff's immediate prognosis is 3 poor, with the long-term prognosis dependent on further assessment. Tr. 619-21.
4 Ms. McManis stated Plaintiff's "disability should be based on back injury [and] 5 pain. Disability would not be recommended for fibromyalgia." Tr. 621. The ALJ 6 gave Ms. McManis' opinion little weight. Tr. 25. As she is a non-acceptable 7 medical source, the ALJ was required to give germane reasons to reject Ms.
8 McManis' opinion. See Ghanim, 763 F.3d at 1161.

9 First, the ALJ found Ms. McManis is not an acceptable medical source. Tr.
10 25. The ALJ is required to consider evidence from non-acceptable medical 11 sources. 20 C.F.R. § 416.927 (2012). Although an individual's status as a 12 medically acceptable source may impact the amount of deference the ALJ gives to 13 an opinion, the ALJ may not reject an opinion as to a claimant's limitations 14 because the opinion comes from a non-acceptable medical source. Id. Here, the 15 ALJ gave little weight to Ms. McManis' opinion because she is not an acceptable 16 medical source, among other reasons. Tr. 25. As the ALJ considered the weight of 17 the opinion rather than rejecting it due to Ms. McManis' status as a non-acceptable 18 source, this was a proper consideration. Further, any error would be harmless 19 because the ALJ gave another germane reason to reject Ms. McManis' opinion.
20 See Molina, 674 F.3d at 1111.

1 Second, the ALJ discounted Ms. McManis' opinion finding that it is 2 inconsistent with the objective evidence. Tr. 25. Relevant factors when evaluating 3 a medical opinion include the amount of relevant evidence that supports the 4 opinion and the consistency of the medical opinion with the record as a whole.
5 Lingenfelter v. Astrue, 504 F.3d 1028, 1042 (9th Cir. 2007); Orn v. Astrue, 495
6 F.3d 625, 631 (9th Cir. 2007). The ALJ found Ms. McManis' opinion inconsistent 7 with the objective findings from Dr. Wagner and Dr. Drenguis' examinations. Tr.
8 25. During Dr. Drenguis' exam, he noted Plaintiff appeared uncomfortable, 9 shifting positions during the exam, and Plaintiff reported discomfort during the 10 exam. Tr. 430-31. Plaintiff had sixteen tender points, as well as tenderness in the 11 lumbar spine and bilateral paravertebral muscle spasms, though Plaintiff's strength, 12 gait, range of motion and straight leg raise test were normal. Tr. 430-32. During 13 Dr. Wagner's exam, Plaintiff had normal gait, strength, generally normal range of 14 motion and sensation, and a positive supine straight leg raise, multiple positive 15 trigger points, and only trace deep tendon reflexes. Tr. 425-26. Ms. McManis 16 noted that the objective evidence of Plaintiff's conditions includes 16 positive 17 tender points, a BMI of 34.21, O2 saturation of 98 percent, Plaintiff walks favoring 18 her left limb, and she has decreased sensitivity to light touch on her left calf, thigh 19 and forearm. Tr. 619. She also noted Plaintiff has pain, which can be exacerbated 20 by her depression and anxiety, fatigue, and numbness and tingling. Id.

1 Fibromyalgia “is diagnosed ‘entirely on the basis of patients’ reports of pain 2 and other symptoms,’ and ‘there are no laboratory test to confirm the diagnosis.’” 3 Revels v. Berryhill, 874 F.3d 648, 666 (9th Cir. 2017) (citing Benecke v. Barnhart, 4 379 F.3d 587, 590 (9th Cir. 2004)). While Plaintiff argues the treatment records 5 provide objective evidence of Plaintiff’s fibromyalgia symptoms, which support 6 Ms. McManis’ opinion, ECF No. 14 at 7-8, Ms. McManis’ opinion is not based 7 entirely on Plaintiff’s fibromyalgia, and she explicitly stated Plaintiff should be 8 considered for disability based on her spinal condition rather than fibromyalgia, 9 Tr. 619-21. The evidence cited by the ALJ conflicts with Ms. McManis’ 10 statement. The examinations demonstrate normal sensation and gait, while Ms.
11 McManis stated Plaintiff had abnormal sensation and gait. Tr. 425-26, 619-21.
12 Additionally, the ALJ found the records do not contain objective evidence of 13 Plaintiff’s reported level of fatigue. Tr. 24. Although Plaintiff reported fatigue at 14 the exams, she also reported being able to independently handle her daily needs, 15 including personal care, cooking, cleaning, shopping, driving and walking for 16 exercise, Tr. 423, 424, 429.

17 Plaintiff points to evidence of appointments where she had an abnormal gait, 18 decreased sensation, weakness, and pain. ECF No. 14 at 8. However, there are 19 multiple appointments where Plaintiff had a normal gait, sensation, and strength.
20 Tr. 311, 365, 400, 402, 419, 425, 431, 443, 673, 677, 683. The ALJ reasonably 1 found the objective evidence and record as a whole are inconsistent with Ms.

2 McManis' opinion, therefore this was a germane reason to reject the opinion.

3 Third, the ALJ found a portion of Ms. McManis' opinion concerned 4 Plaintiff's eligibility for disability, which is an issue reserved to the Commissioner.
5 Tr. 25. A statement by a medical source that a claimant is "unable to work" is not 6 a medical opinion and is not due "any special significance." 20 C.F.R. § 7 416.927(d). Nevertheless, the ALJ is required to consider medical source opinions 8 about any issue, including issues reserved to the Commissioner, by evaluating the 9 opinion in light of the evidence in the record and applying the applicable 20 C.F.R.
10 § 416.927(d) factors. SSR 96-5p at *2-3. Ms. McManis opined a finding of 11 disability should be based on Plaintiff's back impairment. Tr. 621. The ALJ 12 considered Ms. McManis' opinion as a whole, and as discussed supra, rationally 13 found Ms. McManis' opined limitations are not supported by the objective 14 evidence. As such, the ALJ appropriately rejected Ms. McManis' opinion for a 15 germane reason.

16 2. Dr. Drenguis

17 Dr. Drenguis, a consultative examiner, diagnosed Plaintiff with low back 18 pain with failed laminectomy syndrome and fibromyalgia. Tr. 432. He opined 19 Plaintiff can stand/walk at least two hours in an eight-hour workday; sit about six 20 hours in a workday; she does not require an assistive device; she can lift/carry 20

1 pounds occasionally and 10 pounds frequently; she can occasionally engage in 2 postural and manipulative activities; and she has no environmental limitations. Tr.
3 428-33. The ALJ gave Dr. Drenguis' opinion partial weight. Tr. 24. As Dr.
4 Drenguis' opinion is contradicted by Dr. Wagner, Tr. 427, the ALJ was required to 5 give specific and legitimate reasons, supported by substantial evidence, to reject 6 the opinion. See Bayliss, 427 F.3d at 1216.

7 First, the ALJ reasoned Dr. Drenguis' opinion regarding Plaintiff's ability to 8 stand and walk is inconsistent with his examination. Tr. 24. A medical opinion 9 may be rejected if it is unsupported by medical findings. Bray, 554 F.3d at 1228; 10 Batson, 359 F.3d at 1195; Thomas v. Barnhart, 278 F.3d 947, 957 (9th Cir. 2002); 11 Tonapetyan v. Halter, 242 F.3d 1144, 1149 (9th Cir. 2001); Matney v. Sullivan, 12 981 F.2d 1016, 1019 (9th Cir. 1992). Furthermore, a physician's opinion may be 13 rejected if it is unsupported by the physician's treatment notes. Connett v.
14 Barnhart, 340 F.3d 871, 875 (9th Cir. 2003). Dr. Drenguis opined Plaintiff could 15 stand/walk at least two hours, which suggests she could not stand/walk for six 16 hours or more. Tr. 432. At the examination, Plaintiff had normal strength, 17 sensation, gait, station, and coordination. Tr. 24, 431-32. She also had normal 18 range of motion and reflexes and was able to get on and off the exam table and 19 remove her shoes and socks without assistance. Tr. 430-32. Plaintiff argues Dr.
20 Drenguis' opinion was based on her pain resulting from her failed laminectomy

1 syndrome and fibromyalgia, and thus the objective evidence does not undermine 2 Dr. Drenguis opinion. ECF No. 14 at 10. However, Plaintiff's ability to engage in 3 all of the physical activities without limitations, despite her pain, is inconsistent 4 with Dr. Drenguis' opinion. This was a specific and legitimate reason to reject Dr.
5 Drenguis' opinion regarding Plaintiff's ability to stand/walk.

6 Second, the ALJ reasoned Dr. Drenguis' opinion regarding Plaintiff's ability 7 to stand and walk is inconsistent with the objective evidence from Dr. Wagner's 8 examination. Tr. 24. Relevant factors when evaluating a medical opinion include 9 the amount of relevant evidence that supports the opinion and the consistency of 10 the medical opinion with the record as a whole. Lingenfelter, 504 F.3d at 1042; 11 Orn, 495 F.3d at 631. At Dr. Wagner's examination, Plaintiff had normal 12 coordination, station, gait, strength and sensation. Tr. 24, 425-26. Plaintiff also 13 had generally normal range of motion. Tr. 426. Based on his examination, which 14 had similar results to Dr. Drenguis' examination, Dr. Wagner opined Plaintiff 15 could stand/walk up to six hours in a day. Tr. 24, 427. As discussed supra, 16 Plaintiff had generally normal physical examinations at multiple other 17 examinations as well, even during times she reported significant pain symptoms.
18 The ALJ gave specific and legitimate reasons, supported by substantial evidence, 19 to reject Dr. Drenguis' opinion regarding Plaintiff's ability to stand and walk.

1 Plaintiff contends that Dr. Drenguis assessed Plaintiff with manipulative 2 limitations, which the ALJ failed to evaluate and did not incorporate into the RFC.
3 ECF No. 14 at 12. While Defendant argues the ALJ properly addressed Dr.
4 Drenguis' opinion regarding manipulative limitations by addressing the 5 inconsistency between Dr. Drenguis' opinion and Dr. Wagner's, the ALJ did not 6 address Dr. Drenguis' opinion that Plaintiff could only occasionally reach 7 overhead and forward, and frequently finger, handle, and feel. ECF No. 16 at 11-8 2. The ALJ explicitly stated he gave partial weight to Dr. Drenguis' opinion 9 because of his in-person evaluation and the general consistency of his conclusions 10 with the objective findings but found there was not medical support from Dr.
11 Drenguis' exam nor Dr. Wagner's exam for Dr. Drenguis' opinion on Plaintiff's 12 "ability to stand and walk," and did not articulate a reason for rejecting Dr.
13 Drenguis' opinion on Plaintiff's manipulative limitations. Tr. 24. The ALJ's 14 decision does not contain an analysis of Plaintiff's ability to reach or handle.

15 Plaintiff argues this was harmful error because the jobs listed at step five 16 require constant handling or frequent reaching. ECF No. 14 at 12. Defendant did 17 not set forth any arguments as to why this error would be harmless. While Plaintiff 18 did not question the vocational expert regarding the handling and reaching 19 requirements for the jobs the vocational expert gave in response to the ALJ's 20 hypothetical, Plaintiff's argument relies on the characteristics of the job and not the

1 numbers, thus the argument was not waived. See Shaibi v. Berryhill, 883 F.3d 2 1102, 1109 (9th Cir. 2017) (holding that when “when a claimant fails entirely to 3 challenge a vocational expert's job numbers during administrative proceedings 4 before the agency, the claimant forfeits such a challenge on appeal, at least when 5 that claimant is represented by counsel.”). However, as the issue was not 6 addressed at the hearing, no expert testimony is available to address the issue.

7 Plaintiff provided data for the three jobs from Job Browser Pro, a computer 8 system that provides data on occupations. Exhibit 1 to ECF 14. The regulations 9 allow for administrative notice to be taken of reliable information from 10 governmental and other publications, such as the Dictionary of Occupational 11 Titles, though Job Browser Pro is not one of the specifically listed sources. Shaibi, 12 883 F.3d at 1108; 20 C.F.R. § 416.966. A vocational expert’s testimony is 13 generally relied on to determine a claimant’s ability to perform an occupation. 20 14 C.F.R. § 416.966(e).

15 On remand, the ALJ is directed to reconsider Dr. Drenguis’ opinion 16 regarding Plaintiff’s manipulative limitations and incorporate the limitations into 17 the RFC or give specific and legitimate reasons, supported by substantial evidence, 18 to reject the opinion. After reconsidering the RFC, if necessary, the ALJ should 19 call a vocational expert to determine Plaintiff’s ability to perform other work.
20

1 3. Dr. Patterson

2 Dr. Patterson, a consultative examiner, diagnosed Plaintiff with major 3 depressive disorder and panic disorder with agoraphobia. Tr. 437. He opined 4 Plaintiff would have difficulty performing detailed and complex tasks, interacting 5 with coworkers and the public, completing a normal workday/workweek without 6 interruptions from psychiatric symptoms, and dealing with usual stress 7 encountered in the workplace; and she would not have difficulty managing her 8 own funds, performing simple and repetitive tasks, performing work activities 9 without special/additional instructions, accepting instructions from supervisors, 10 and maintaining regular attendance. Tr. 437-38. The ALJ gave Dr. Patterson's 11 opinion little weight. Tr. 27. As Dr. Patterson's opinion is contradicted by Dr.
12 Zhang, Tr. 420-21, the ALJ was required to give specific and legitimate reasons, 13 supported by substantial evidence, to reject the opinion. See Bayliss, 427 F.3d at 14 1216.

15 The ALJ found portions of Dr. Patterson's opinion were unclear. Tr. 27. A 16 medical opinion may be rejected by the ALJ if it is conclusory or inadequately 17 supported. Bray, 554 F.3d at 1228. Furthermore, an ALJ may reject an opinion 18 that does "not show how [a claimant's] symptoms translate into specific functional 19 deficits which preclude work activity." See Morgan v. Comm'r of Soc. Sec.
20 Admin, 169 F.3d 595, 601 (9th Cir. 1999). Dr. Patterson's opinion does not

1 contain any quantifiable limitations. He opined Plaintiff “would have difficulties” 2 in several areas of functioning but did not indicate the degree or frequency of the 3 difficulties. However, the ALJ gave more weight to Dr. Flanagan’s opinion, 4 though the ALJ stated “Dr. Flanagan’s opinion is as non-descriptive as Dr.
5 Patterson’s.” Tr. 27. The ALJ did not give any explanation for affording more 6 weight to Dr. Flanagan’s opinion over Dr. Patterson’s, when they were equally 7 non-descriptive. Defendant argues the ALJ did not give Dr. Flanagan’s opinion 8 more weight than Dr. Patterson’s, however the ALJ gave Dr. Patterson’s opinion 9 “little” weight while giving Dr. Flanagan’s opinion “some” weight, indicating Dr.
10 Flanagan’s opinion was given more weight. ECF No. 16 at 14; Tr. 27-28. As 11 such, the ALJ erred by not giving specific and legitimate reasons to reject Dr.
12 Patterson’s opinion. Defendant does not set forth any arguments as to how this 13 error may be harmless. Thus, remand is warranted.

14 On remand, the ALJ is instructed to reconsider Dr. Patterson’s opinion and 15 incorporate the limitations into the RFC or give specific and legitimate reasons, 16 supported by substantial evidence, to reject the opinion.

17 4. Dr. Cline

18 Dr. Cline, a DSHS examiner, diagnosed Plaintiff with a provisional but 19 primary diagnosis of borderline personality disorder, marijuana use disorder, 20 alcohol use disorder in reported early remission, methamphetamine use disorder in 1 reported remission, PTSD, unspecified anxiety disorder with features of 2 agoraphobia and panic disorder (rule out substance induced/exacerbated), 3 unspecified depressive disorder (rule out substance induced/exacerbated), and a 4 rule out diagnosis of somatic symptom disorder. Tr. 470. Dr. Cline opined 5 Plaintiff has no to mild limitations in her ability to understand, remember and 6 persist in tasks by following very short and simple instructions; understand, 7 remember and persist in tasks by following details instructions; learn new tasks; 8 perform routine tasks without special supervision; adapt to changes in a routine 9 work setting; and ask simple questions or request assistance; moderate limitations 10 in her ability to perform activities within a schedule, maintain regular attendance, 11 and be punctual within customary tolerances without special supervision; make 12 simple work-related decision; be aware of normal hazards and take appropriate 13 precautions; communicate and perform effectively in a work setting; and complete 14 a normal workday/workweek without interruptions from psychologically-based 15 symptoms; and marked limitations in her ability to maintain appropriate behavior 16 in a work setting; and set realistic goals and plan independently. Tr. 471. She 17 opined Plaintiff's impairments overall had a marked severity rating. Id. The ALJ 18 gave Dr. Cline's opinion partial weight. Tr. 26. As Dr. Cline's opinion is 19 contradicted by Dr. Zhang, Tr. 420-21, the ALJ was required to give specific and 20

1 legitimate reasons, supported by substantial evidence, to reject the opinion. See 2 Bayliss, 427 F.3d at 1216.

3 First, the ALJ found Plaintiff's marijuana use and Dr. Cline's assessment 4 that it would be difficult to differentiate between the symptoms caused by 5 substance abuse or by her underlying psychological problems detracted from the 6 weight afforded to Dr. Cline's opinion. Tr. 26. An ALJ may discount a medical 7 opinion that does not consider a claimant's ongoing substance abuse, Cothrell v.
8 Berryhill, 742 Fed. App'x 232, 236 (9th Cir. July 18, 2018) (unpublished opinion); 9 Chavez v. Colvin, No. 3:14-cv-01178-JE, 2016 WL 8731796, at *8 (D. Or. July 25, 10 2016) (unpublished opinion). Here, Dr. Cline had knowledge of Plaintiff's 11 substance use and opined Plaintiff's impairments are not primarily the result of 12 substances use, and her current impairments would persist following 60 days of 13 sobriety. Tr. 472. At the time of Dr. Cline's exam, Plaintiff reported daily use of 14 marijuana and a history of other substance abuse. Tr. 470. Dr. Cline noted that her 15 ability to diagnose Plaintiff was compromised by the substance use as such 16 substance abuse would make it difficult to assess Plaintiff's mental impairments.
17 See, e.g., Tr. 468 ("[D]ue to her long and fairly significant substance abuse history, 18 it will be difficult to separate out what symptoms are caused by her substance 19 abuse and which ones are related to underlying psychological problems."); Tr. 468 20 ("...though she appears to have had significant episodes of depression in the past

1 these may have been strongly influenced by her substance use.”); Tr. 470 (noting 2 Plaintiff described depressive episodes where Plaintiff did not get out of bed, “but 3 these were concurrent with significant substance abuse, making differentiation 4 difficult.”); Tr. 472 (commenting that although Plaintiff’s impairments would 5 persist after 60 days of sobriety, “[t]hough her ongoing marijuana use may well be 6 causing rebound anxiety and exacerbating her depressive symptoms.”); Tr. 472 7 (“A thorough [chemical dependency] assessment would also be helpful as she 8 should seek an extended period of complete abstinence to help clarify her true 9 diagnoses.”). This was a specific and legitimate reason to discount her opinion.

10 Second, the ALJ found Dr. Cline’s opinion is internally inconsistent. Tr. 26.
11 Relevant factors to evaluating any medical opinion include the amount of relevant 12 evidence that supports the opinion, the quality of the explanation provided in the 13 opinion, and the consistency of the medical opinion with the record as a whole.
14 Lingenfelter, 504 F.3d at 1042; Orn, 495 F.3d at 631. Moreover, a physician’s 15 opinion may be rejected if it is unsupported by the physician’s treatment notes.
16 See Connett, 340 F.3d at 875. Defendant presents no argument in opposition to 17 Plaintiff’s contention the ALJ improperly found Dr. Cline’s opinion internally 18 consistent. See ECF No. 18 at 12-13.

19 Third, the ALJ found Dr. Cline’s opinion regarding more significant 20 limitations inconsistent with the record as a whole. Tr. 26. An ALJ may reject

1 limitations “unsupported by the record as a whole.” Batson v. Comm’r Soc. Sec.
2 Admin., 359 F.3d 1190, 1195 (9th Cir. 2003). The specific and legitimate standard 3 can be met by “setting out a detailed and thorough summary of the facts and 4 conflicting clinical evidence, [the ALJ] stating his interpretation thereof, and 5 making findings.” Reddick v. Chater, 157 F.3d 715, 725 (9th Cir. 1998); Embrey 6 v. Bowen, 849 F.2d 418, 421–22 (9th Cir. 1988) (conclusory reasons do not 7 “achieve the level of specificity” required to justify an ALJ’s rejection of an 8 opinion); McAllister v. Sullivan, 888 F.2d 599, 602 (9th Cir. 1989) (an ALJ’s 9 rejection of a physician’s opinion on the ground that it was contrary to clinical 10 findings in the record was “broad and vague, failing to specify why the ALJ felt 11 the treating physician’s opinion was flawed”); see also Blakes v. Barnhart, 331 12 F.3d 565, 569 (7th Cir. 2003) (“We require the ALJ to build an accurate and 13 logical bridge from the evidence to her conclusions so that we may afford the 14 claimant meaningful review of the SSA’s ultimate findings.”); Rice v. Barnhart, 15 384 F.3d 363, 370 n.5 (7th Cir. 2004) (“consider[ing] the ALJ’s treatment of the 16 record evidence in support of both his conclusions at steps three and five” because 17 “it is proper to read the ALJ’s decision as a whole” and “it would be a needless 18 formality to have the ALJ repeat substantially similar factual analyses at both steps 19 three and five”); Jones v. Barnhart, 364 F.3d 501, 505 (3d Cir. 2004) (stating that 20 “the ALJ’s decision, read as a whole, illustrates that the ALJ considered the 1 appropriate factors in reaching the conclusion that [the claimant] did not meet the 2 requirements for any listing”). Defendant did not set forth any arguments 3 regarding this issue.

4 The ALJ stated some of Dr. Cline’s ratings were inconsistent with the record 5 as a whole. Tr. 26. However, the ALJ did not cite to any evidence that is 6 inconsistent with Dr. Cline’s opinion, nor explain specifically which ratings were 7 inconsistent with the evidence. Reading the ALJ’s decision as a whole, the ALJ
8 did not sufficiently address the record in a way that demonstrates Dr. Cline’s 9 opinion is inconsistent with the record as a whole. Dr. Cline opined Plaintiff had 10 marked limitations in her ability to maintain appropriate behavior and set realistic 11 goals independently, and moderate limitations in working within a schedule, 12 making simple decisions, handling hazards, communicating and performing 13 effectively in a work setting, and found Plaintiff had an overall marked limitation.
14 Tr. 471. The ALJ’s analysis of the record does not address any evidence regarding 15 Plaintiff’s ability to maintain appropriate behavior or set realistic goals 16 independently. Thus, the ALJ erred in finding Dr. Cline’s opinion inconsistent 17 with the longitudinal record.

18 Fourth, the ALJ reasoned DSHS’ regulations differ from Social Security’s 19 regulations. Tr. 26. Although 20 C.F.R. § 416.904 provides that a state disability 20 decision is not binding on the Commissioner, the ALJ must still evaluate each

1 medical source opinion and consider the supporting evidence underlying the 2 decision. 20 C.F.R. §§ 416.913(a), 416.927(b), (c). Moreover, the ALJ did not 3 evaluate how Washington state's DSHS requirements differ from the Social 4 Security disability requirements, of particular importance given that WAC 182-5 512-0050 relies on the Social Security five-step analytic framework. See Holbrook
6 v. Berryhill, No. 15-35552, 696 F. App'x 846 (9th Cir. Aug. 30, 2017)
7 (unpublished opinion) (reversing the ALJ for failing to adequately consider a 8 Washington DSHS decision finding the claimant disabled).

9 Defendant does not set forth any arguments regarding this issue. The fact 10 that there are differences between the DSHS requirements and Social Security's 11 regulations alone is not a specific and legitimate reason to reject Dr. Cline's 12 opinion. While the ALJ gave a specific and legitimate reason to reject Dr. Cline's 13 opinion, the majority of the analysis was in error. Because the case is being 14 remanded on other grounds, the ALJ is directed on remand to also reconsider Dr.
15 Cline's opinion and incorporate the limitations in to the RFC, or give specific and 16 legitimate reasons, supported by substantial evidence, to reject the opinion, and to 17 perform a DAA analysis should one be necessary. Further, the ALJ is directed to 18 obtain testimony from a psychological expert at the hearing, to address Plaintiff's 19 impairments, limitations, and whether Plaintiff's substance use is a material issue.

1 B. Plaintiff's Symptom Claims

2 Plaintiff faults the ALJ for failing to rely on clear and convincing reasons to 3 discredit her symptom claims. ECF No. 14 at 16-21. An ALJ engages in a two-4 step analysis to determine whether to discount a claimant's testimony regarding 5 subjective symptoms.⁴ SSR 16-3p, 2016 WL 1119029, at *2. "First, the ALJ must 6 determine whether there is objective medical evidence of an underlying 7 impairment which could reasonably be expected to produce the pain or other 8 symptoms alleged." Molina, 674 F.3d at 1112 (quotation marks omitted). "The 9 claimant is not required to show that [the claimant's] impairment could reasonably 10 be expected to cause the severity of the symptom [the claimant] has alleged; [the 11 claimant] need only show that it could reasonably have caused some degree of the 12 symptom." Vasquez v. Astrue, 572 F.3d 586, 591 (9th Cir. 2009).

13 Second, "[i]f the claimant meets the first test and there is no evidence of 14 malinger, the ALJ can only reject the claimant's testimony about the severity of 15 the symptoms if [the ALJ] gives 'specific, clear and convincing reasons' for the 17 ⁴ At the time of the ALJ's decision, the regulation that governed the evaluation of 18 symptom claims was SSR 16-3p, which superseded SSR 96-7p effective March 24, 19 2016. SSR 16-3p; Titles II and XVI: Evaluation of Symptoms in Disability 20 Claims, 81 Fed. Reg. 15776, 15776 (Mar. 24, 2016).

1 rejection.” Ghanim, 763 F.3d at 1163 (citations omitted). General findings are 2 insufficient; rather, the ALJ must identify what symptom claims are being 3 discounted and what evidence undermines these claims. Id. (quoting Lester, 81 4 F.3d at 834; Thomas, 278 F.3d at 958 (requiring the ALJ to sufficiently explain 5 why it discounted claimant’s symptom claims)). “The clear and convincing 6 [evidence] standard is the most demanding required in Social Security cases.” 7 Garrison v. Colvin, 759 F.3d 995, 1015 (9th Cir. 2014) (quoting Moore v. Comm’r 8 of Soc. Sec. Admin., 278 F.3d 920, 924 (9th Cir. 2002)).

9 Factors to be considered in evaluating the intensity, persistence, and limiting 10 effects of a claimant’s symptoms include: 1) daily activities; 2) the location, 11 duration, frequency, and intensity of pain or other symptoms; 3) factors that 12 precipitate and aggravate the symptoms; 4) the type, dosage, effectiveness, and 13 side effects of any medication an individual takes or has taken to alleviate pain or 14 other symptoms; 5) treatment, other than medication, an individual receives or has 15 received for relief of pain or other symptoms; 6) any measures other than treatment 16 an individual uses or has used to relieve pain or other symptoms; and 7) any other 17 factors concerning an individual’s functional limitations and restrictions due to 18 pain or other symptoms. SSR 16-3p, 2016 WL 1119029, at *7; 20 C.F.R. § 19 416.929 (c). The ALJ is instructed to “consider all of the evidence in an individual's record," "to determine how symptoms limit ability to perform work-related activities." SSR 16-3p, 2016 WL 1119029, at *2.

The ALJ found that Plaintiff's medically determinable impairments could reasonably be expected to cause some of the alleged symptoms, but that Plaintiff's statements concerning the intensity, persistence, and limiting effects of her symptoms were not entirely consistent with the evidence. Tr. 22.

First, the ALJ found the objective evidence did not fully support Plaintiff's claims. Tr. 22, 24, 25. An ALJ may not discredit a claimant's symptom testimony and deny benefits solely because the degree of the symptoms alleged is not supported by objective medical evidence. Rollins v. Massanari, 261 F.3d 853, 857 (9th Cir. 2001); Bunnell v. Sullivan, 947 F.2d 341, 346-47 (9th Cir. 1991); Fair v. Bowen, 885 F.2d 597, 601 (9th Cir. 1989); Burch v. Barnhart, 400 F.3d 676, 680 (9th Cir. 2005). However, the objective medical evidence is a relevant factor, along with the medical source's information about the claimant's pain or other symptoms, in determining the severity of a claimant's symptoms and their disabling effects. Rollins, 261 F.3d at 857; 20 C.F.R. § 416.929(c)(2).

Regarding her physical symptoms, in 2016, Ms. Chan found Plaintiff's fibromyalgia was stable. Tr. 22 (citing Tr. 407). Dr. Wagner's July 2016 consultative exam found Plaintiff had generally normal findings, including normal gait, strength, and sensation. Tr. 23 (citing Tr. 424-26). Treatment records

1 demonstrate Plaintiff had an abnormal gait and sensation at some appointments.
2 Tr. 23 (citing Tr. 465); Tr. 625, 633. At Dr. Drenguis' consultative exam, Plaintiff 3 again had generally normal findings, including normal gait, range of motion, 4 strength, and sensation. Tr. 23-24 (citing Tr. 432-33). Although Plaintiff argues 5 the ALJ improperly considered the objective evidence as he did not consider 6 evidence of her fibromyalgia symptoms, ECF No. 14 at 17-18, as discussed supra, 7 the objective evidence demonstrates many occasions where Plaintiff had normal 8 physical findings, which is inconsistent with her reported physical limitations.

9 Regarding her mental health symptoms, the ALJ found Plaintiff did not 10 continue taking medications for periods longer than one to two months, and she 11 had minimal dosage increases. Tr. 27 (citing Tr. 463). Dr. Espirtu opined 12 Plaintiff should return to work in 2012 as it would help her psychologically, and 13 Dr. Zhang opined in 2016 that Plaintiff had only mild to moderate limitations due 14 to her mental health symptoms. Tr. 27 (citing Tr. 420-21, 461). Plaintiff argues 15 that the evidence supports Plaintiff's claims but cites primarily to treatment records 16 containing generally normal exams and Plaintiff's self-report. ECF No. 14 at 20; 17 Tr. 498 (normal speech, psychomotor activity, and cooperation but agitated, 18 anxious, sad, labile, and complains of issues with attention and memory); Tr. 503 19 (self-report of concentration, memory, and social difficulties); Tr. 507, 515-16, 20 523-24 (normal speech, mood, affect, memory, and cognition, but impaired

1 attention, tangential but logical thoughts, and fair insight/judgment). Plaintiff's 2 treatment records overall demonstrate some ongoing symptoms, but also 3 demonstrate mostly normal mental status exam results. This was a clear and 4 convincing reason, coupled with the other reasons identified by the ALJ, to reject
5 Plaintiff's symptom claims.

6 Second, the ALJ found Plaintiff had improvement in her symptoms with 7 treatment. Tr. 22, 24, 27. The effectiveness of treatment is a relevant factor in 8 determining the severity of a claimant's symptoms. 20 C.F.R. § 416.929(c)(3); see 9 Warre v. Comm'r of Soc. Sec. Admin., 439 F.3d 1001, 1006 (9th Cir. 2006); 10 Tommasetti v. Astrue, 533 F.3d 1035, 1040 (9th Cir. 2008) (a favorable response to 11 treatment can undermine a claimant's complaints of debilitating pain or other 12 severe limitations).

13 Plaintiff reported her pain was "mostly controlled" with Tramadol in 2015.
14 Tr. 22, 345. In 2018, Plaintiff reported she was "doing well" on her pain 15 medication regimen. Tr. 24 (citing Tr. 624). Plaintiff reported her mental health 16 medications were not entirely effective in 2017, but after counseling and a 17 medication dosage increase, Plaintiff reported her mood was less labile, and her 18 sleep had improved. Tr. 27 (citing Tr. 518, 521, 526). Plaintiff contends the ALJ 19 erred in his analysis of Plaintiff's improvement with treatment, because records 20 demonstrate she had periods of more significant symptoms. ECF No. 14 at 18.

1 However, the records demonstrate Plaintiff had improvement in several of 2 symptoms when she sought consistent treatment. This was a clear and convincing 3 reason to reject Plaintiff's symptom claims.

4 Third, the ALJ found Plaintiff was non-complaint with recommended 5 treatment. Tr. 27. Unexplained, or inadequately explained, failure to seek 6 treatment or follow a prescribed course of treatment may serve as a basis to 7 discount the claimant's reported symptoms, unless there is a good reason for the 8 failure. Orn, 495 F.3d at 638. Plaintiff initiated counseling after receiving a 9 referral but discontinued it after one session. Tr. 27 (citing Tr. 530, 534). Plaintiff 10 was also referred to an orthopedist but did not follow through with the referral. Tr.
11 23 (citing Tr. 603). Plaintiff argues she requested a female counselor due to her 12 mental health symptoms and did not return to counseling because she had a male 13 counselor, and the ALJ should have properly considered her reason for not seeking 14 care. ECF No. 14 at 21. However, the record does not provide a reason why 15 Plaintiff requested a female counselor, nor why she never sought additional care.
16 Tr. 522, 534. Plaintiff does not offer a reason as to why she did not follow through 17 on the orthopedic referral. This was a clear and convincing reason to reject 18 Plaintiff's symptom claims.

19 Fourth, the ALJ considered Plaintiff's activities of daily living. Tr. 23, 25.
20 The ALJ may consider a claimant's activities that undermine reported symptoms.

1 Rollins, 261 F.3d at 857. If a claimant can spend a substantial part of the day 2 engaged in pursuits involving the performance of exertional or non-exertional 3 functions, the ALJ may find these activities inconsistent with the reported 4 disabling symptoms. Fair, 885 F.2d at 603; Molina, 674 F.3d at 1113. “While a 5 claimant need not vegetate in a dark room in order to be eligible for benefits, the 6 ALJ may discount a claimant’s symptom claims when the claimant reports 7 participation in everyday activities indicating capacities that are transferable to a 8 work setting” or when activities “contradict claims of a totally debilitating 9 impairment.” Molina, 674 F.3d at 1112-13.

10 The ALJ found Plaintiff reported she could drive and go out alone, socialize 11 occasionally, cook, clean, shop, do laundry and dishes, perform other activities 12 without assistance, and walk for exercise. Tr. 23, 25 (citing Tr. 418-19, 424, 430).
13 While the ALJ did not provide any analysis of how the activities are inconsistent 14 with Plaintiff’s symptom claims, any error would be harmless, as the ALJ gave 15 other clear and convincing reasons to reject Plaintiff’s symptom complaints. See 16 Molina, 674 F.3d at 1111. Plaintiff is not entitled to remand on these grounds.

17 CONCLUSION

18 Having reviewed the record and the ALJ’s findings, the Court concludes the 19 ALJ’s decision is not supported by substantial evidence and free of harmful legal 20 error. Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

1 1. The District Court Executive is directed to substitute Andrew M. Saul as 2 the Defendant and update the docket sheet.

3 2. Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment, ECF No. 14, is GRANTED.

4 3. Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment, ECF No. 16, is DENIED.

5 4. The Clerk's Office shall enter JUDGMENT in favor of Plaintiff 6 REVERSING and REMANDING the matter to the Commissioner of Social 7 Security for further proceedings consistent with this recommendation pursuant to 8 sentence four of 42 U.S.C. § 405(g).

9 The District Court Executive is directed to file this Order, provide copies to 10 counsel, and CLOSE THE FILE.
